THE HUNGRY HORDES.

DAILY ANNOYANCES FROM THE PERSISTENT OFFICE-BEGGARS.

How the President and Heads of Departments Are Annoyed from Day to Day. Distinguished and Pleasant Callers.—Miss Cleveland—Not a

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Of the nearly five millions of voters who voted to make Mr. Cleveland president about three hundred remain here begging him and his cabinet for offices for themselves or for friends. But then, these three hundred are as persistent as fleas in a Spanish inn or as flies on a hot August day. Many of their faces have become familiar in every place where an office can be begged for. Many of them have gone home and returned. Some of them have been here ever since the 4th of March. Some of them of course are recent arrivals, fresh on the scene. Some of them want office for themselves, others are the agents of friends. Concerning how much Uncle Sam's pay is one wonders how these poor creatures expect to get back their hotel bills and other expenses, even they should get office, which is not at all likely, or how those who are acting as agents for others are going to get pay for boring the president and the cabinet day after day in a way that disgusts and irritates all who look on at the daily crowd.

The number is not great. Compared with the total number of those who voted the democratic ticket it is infinitesimally small. But, for as they have become more and more brazen to public business. They spoil the president's day, for they come early and in force, and they continue coming pretty much all day. For weeks Mr. Cleveland, who is conscientious and faithful in the discharge of his duty, has worked almost every night until one o'clock, after giving the day from nine o'clock to office beggars. For weeks those members of the cabinet who are supposed to have something to give away have been compelled to work at night also at the necessary labor of administration.

And all, not because the Democratic party is "an organized appetite" for the reverse has proved true of it—but because three or four hundred persistent office beggars, who claim to be the Democratic party, say here to take up the time of the president and cabinet with their stretched appeals. A new comes here for some office, sometimes for any office he can get. He is armed with a lot of too easily got recommendations from influential men, and he goes to the president, gets anything so long as he gets out of their sight; he gets his congressman either to introduce him or give him a letter; he knows a senator, perhaps; he pleads poverty, or long service to the party, or the support of his congressman—almost anything, in fact, but exceptional fitness. He does not ask whether a place is vacant or whether he is wanted. He is simply a beggar. To him there is no such thing as a "bad lot" and ought not to have anything, but that it would have hurt his recommender's "chances" if he were not to bring him up. The number of congressmen is not large. For instance, three Democratic senators, McPherson, Harris and Call, visited the president, and thirteen representatives, Lefevre, Warner and Hill, of Ohio; Lafoon, of Kentucky; Kleiner, of Indiana; Ward, Morrison, Townsend and Worthington, of Illinois; Herbert, of Alabama; Daniel and Cabell, of Virginia, and Sowden, of Pennsylvania. Still to talk to sixteen men, morning and probably about various matters, and still more probably in the slow and leisurely and the still slower casual way in which many of these gentlemen talk business, this takes up time.

His thing ought to be stopped. It is not that the Democratic party is office begging; it is an infinitesimally small part of it which is taking up the time and strength which the president and his cabinet ought to be able to devote to important public duties. The evil is too great, and the authors of it are too contemptible to deserve the tolerating, inviting that a great deal of respect is to be prepared on many branches of the administration. As these reports come in they have to be examined. Mr. Cleveland is a careful man; he aims to do no injustice to any one; he and his cabinet officers study reports, study testimony, make careful inquiries to see where the system of administration needs to be changed and how, and to find trustworthy and capable men to take up the burden of the government. The daily routine of the government must be carried on. That their investigations bear results beneficial and important to the public, that is necessary to this tedious labor is already evident in the reforms of the New York Custom house and in many less conspicuous directions. That a great deal of right scrutiny is plain enough. For instance, the public did not know that Secretary Manning was carrying the New York Custom house until the defalcation at New Orleans was made known. But serious irregularities have since then been exposed, and the sub-treasuries. This administration works and does not boast itself. But it ought not to be hindered in its important labor for the good of the public by the time-wasting office beggar.

The president has already ordered that no one shall be admitted to see him or any member of the cabinet on Saturdays. But he is too kind hearted. He ought to go much further. He ought in the public interest to order that no congressman or other shall have admittance himself or to any head of a department or bureau, except on one day in the week, to present claims for office.

The president had another large number of callers. Three of them were of decided interest to him. The Iowa editorial association called to pay their respects. They were rather a fine looking body of men, but no one would ever take them for editors. The majority of them publish weekly papers, on which they act as editors, publishers, reporters and business managers combined. Among the party was Mr. J. W. Hubbard, now an editor of a thriving paper. Mr. Hubbard was a teacher of a grammar school in Clinton, N. Y., a number of years ago, when President Cleveland was one of his pupils. The president has not forgotten Mr. Hubbard, since he left his school, but he immediately recognized him as he passed along the line saying his respects. The meeting between the school teacher and his distinguished pupil was an interesting one. They spent some time in a pleasant chat, during which the president told Mr. Hubbard that he had been informally at the White House during his stay in this city. Mr. Hubbard told some pleasant stories about the president's school days in his editorial association. He says promptness and reliability were young Cleveland's marked characteristics, and that while he did not master his studies easily as did some of the other pupils, he worked hard to do so.

Another caller, that interested the president very much was Mrs. Reeside, of Woodbury, Baltimore county, Md. Mrs. Reeside is now eighty-nine years of age. It was her husband who first introduced her to the White House. On her previous visit Gen. Jackson was president. She had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Lincoln, and she had been in the same room in which she saw President Cleveland. Mrs. Reeside is still very active, needing no assistance in walking about. She is an enthusiastic Democrat. Mr. Reeside held quite a reception herself in the East Room after she paid her respects to the president. While he did not master his studies easily as did some of the other pupils, he worked hard to do so.

Among the other callers who were seen by Rev. C. W. Adams, of New York, and Senator Logan, Gen. Logan simply called, he said, to pay his respects to the president. The meeting between them was very pleasant. There was nothing said about politics. Senator Logan's call was brief. After leaving the White House, he called on Secretary Manning at the treasury department. While there Representative Morrison, of Illinois, an ardent opponent of the aid to the south, dropped in. They talked about the weather and other kindred subjects. Though politically opponents, there has been a close personal friendship between Gen. Logan and Mr. Morrison for over thirty years. Originally, when Gen. Logan was a democrat, he and Mr. Morrison were political enemies. Since they have always done all they could in advancing the interests of each other.

There were more senators and representatives at the White House than on any day for several weeks. Shortly after noon Miss Cleveland received two of her friends here in attendance on the charities and corrections convention. The reception took place in the Blue Room. The friends had an idea that Miss Cleveland would make some formal remarks, but she did not, though the pleasant reception they all had. The reception lasted nearly an hour. It occurred just about the same time that the president was holding his reception in the East Room.

Professor Bailey has received the letter of P. T. Barnum which will be given a prominent position in the National museum. It will be placed among the busts of distinguished Americans, of which there are large numbers already in the museum. The exhibit that the National museum sent to the New Orleans exposition is still on display. Included in this exhibit are the various relics of the Jamestown, Proteus, Lady Franklin Bay and other Arctic expeditions.

MILITARY MATTERS.

Cincinnati to be represented at Fairmount Park.

CINCINNATI, June 11.—That the first regiment of N. G., of this city, will attend the grand National soldiers' encampment and competitive drill at Fairmount park, from June 28 to July 6, was positively decided by the successful meeting of citizens in the mayor's council. The meeting was responded to by about thirty of our best business men, and was presided over by Mayor Smith, A. L. Fogg, secretary. The raising of $2,500 for expenses was decided, and it was unanimously agreed that they should go. Committees were appointed to wait on the present silver dollar represent the various branches of trade, solicit subscriptions and make returns of the same next Friday.

The examination for the management of ex-Lieut. Gov. John C. Underwood, and has fired the ambitions of every military citizen in the country, nearly every large city having already signified its intention of being represented. Some lively drilling is being done; and although our boys will have a comparatively light drill, they are themselves, they assure their friends that Cincinnati will not pass unnoticed at the grand encampment.

Protecting His Father's Good Name.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Lieut. L. K. Reynolds, a member of the Greeley Relief expedition, came to this city for the purpose of informing the two companies of his father's death. The remains of his father, who was killed last week by a plume from the third story of the National Hotel, were returned to his home in St. Louis. The remains were returned to his home in St. Louis.

THE AFGHAN BOUNDARY.

EARL GRANVILLE CHARGED WITH TOO MUCH QUIBBLING.

The Spread of Cholera in Spain—Precautionary Measures in Madrid—A Swiss Calamity—Revolutionary Crete. Ministers—Foreign News.

LONDON, June 11.—The Pall Mall Gazette contains an article which is apparently inspired by M. Lesser, of the Russian section of the Afghan boundary commission. The article admits that the "settlement" of the matters in dispute with Russia is still unsigned, and attributes the present delay to the hair-splitting or quibbling of Earl Granville. The article, in tones more in anger than firmness, warns the earl not to carry his dilatory game too far. It might become dangerous.

The Afghan frontier convention between England and Russia is ready for signature. It was arranged that the representatives of the two powers should sign the convention in London, but the signing was subsequently postponed. Russian embassy officials say that the delay is due to Earl Granville's reluctance to sign the convention. The delay is already accepted by Russia. Complaints come from the foreign department at St. Petersburg that a breach of diplomatic proprieties was committed by the English foreign office in compiling the recent Blue Book. The complainants say that the document has been "cooked" for presentation to parliament that the Russian government will be compelled to publish a correction of the Russian version of the correspondence.

In the house of commons Mr. John K. Cross, under secretary for India, spoke for the government in answer to a number of questions concerning the Afghan frontier. He has been made on the government by Sir Peter Lumsden. Mr. Cross assured the house that Sir Peter, since his arrival in London, has disavowed any intention to attack the government and did not consider himself answerable for the incorrectly reported utterances attributed to him by journalists inclined to misrepresent him.

The Cholera.

MADRID, June 11.—All reports of deaths from cholera in Madrid thus far are false. Most of the reports about the spread of the contagion of a certain house and the hurried burial of the corpse of a diarrhoea patient.

The mayor, as already telegraphed, has ordered the city to be placed in the best possible sanitary condition. He has established a laboratory for the detection of impurities in food, and ordered disinfectants to be used freely. The city has been divided into sanitary districts. The cholera now spreading here is not trustworthy. One man of note, reported to have died from cholera after inoculation, was found to have been a case of typhoid fever. The number of cases is certainly increasing, but not in proportion to the heat and filth. Great amusement is caused by the government putting the provincial sanitary commissions in quarantine. It was their activity that forced the ministry to investigate the disease. Four of cholera, and a great number of other hardships are very great; but among the lower classes there is great faith in Dr. Ferran's system of inoculation.

Cashmere's Earthquake.

LONDON, June 11.—Despatches continue to come in from the earthquake in the north of the Vale of Cashmere. Whole villages have been destroyed and Dugboog, Jannapoor and Ovan have disappeared entirely, having been buried in the awful convulsion. The fort at Guraia and the granaries in many parts of the vale have been swallowed up. A large supply of rice and a considerable amount of money have been distributed throughout the Vale of Cashmere to the relief of the people. It is estimated that two hundred persons were killed.

A Swiss Calamity.

BRUSSELS, June 11.—A sad item of intelligence has just reached here from Switzerland. The Bernese members of the Rhine club made an excursion from Basle up the Rhine to Rheinfelden, where they enjoyed themselves during the day. On returning to Basle the boat in which the members were carried by the current against one of the pillars of the bridge and upset. All the excursionists were precipitated into the swift current, and, unhappily, before aid could be afforded ten members of the club were drowned.

Revolutionary Crete.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 11.—A revolution is reported imminent in Crete. The great majority of the population of the island are Greek Christians, and they are bitterly opposed to the appointment of Savas Pacha as governor of the viayet. All the Christians of the island are in a state of rebellion, and the Cretan assembly have refused to hold no relations with the governor.

Ministers at the Hague.

THE HAGUE, June 11.—Mr. William L. Dayton, United States minister at The Hague, had a farwelled audience with the minister of foreign affairs, and presented his letters of recall. Upon the same occasion Mr. Bial, the newly appointed minister, was introduced to his excellency and presented his credentials.

SALVATION ARMY

Attacked by a Mob of Two Thousand.

HONOLULU, June 11.—The Salvation army, by way of jubilation over the council's refusal to pass an ordinance suppressing them as nuisances, paraded a large mob of howling huns attacked them, broke their drums and tamborines, destroyed their flags and assaulted the leaders. A mob of howling huns attacked them, broke their drums and tamborines, destroyed their flags and assaulted the leaders. A mob of howling huns attacked them, broke their drums and tamborines, destroyed their flags and assaulted the leaders.

SPRINGFIELD CONVENTION.

Views of the Situation Just before the Battle Opens.

SPRINGFIELD, June 11.—Several secret meetings of the Foraker managers have been held, in which reports have been made concerning the vote of every county. At the last hour it is learned that the estimate made very carefully gave Foraker 430 votes on the first ballot, and insures his nomination. This is subject to change both ways, and the managers will watch that it does not decrease. This was without Cuyahoga. Anyhow, Foraker will come so close that several delegates will drop to him to have the honor of giving him the nomination. Kennedy's boom seems to have collapsed. Beatty arrived from Columbus, and his followers became a little enthused. Southern Ohio delegates are coming in fast. Earl B. Bell, Frank W. Jewell, Henry Knowl and H. Newman were the latest from Cincinnati.

Major McKinley has arrived from Canton, to a reporter he said: "I am in favor of Foraker's nomination. I know it is not very likely to be a candidate for governor to be at a convention held in the state of Ohio. He can do more than any man in Ohio to positively counteract the fight against him." The manager admits the danger of Foraker's nomination, and says of Northeastern Ohio: "I supposed that it was coming down solid for Foraker, but can't say so. I found the Cleveland delegates who came with me for Foraker. If they can spring him it will be so." "What do you think of Rose?"

"We might do worse. Still I believe we had better nominate some man who is a candidate and not spring anything." "That would leave you out?" "I am not a candidate. I wouldn't have it. Sir, I prefer some man in congress, where I can be fitted to serve my constituents." "About the platform—what should it say?" "I would favor some declarations on the tariff, and the liquor question will demand some attention. I don't think the issue of the campaign will be on that basis, but it will figure in the canvass. I would favor taxation for regulation and revenue. No, I would not use restriction on some R's. Leave restriction out." Maj. McKinley believes that the convention will make no mistake in nominating any man except Taylor, whose temperance record will hurt him among liquor men. The major is likely to be either president of the convention or to be made chairman of the resolutions committee.

A LITTLE GIRL BURGLAR.

She Enters a Jersey City Store and Obtains Valuable Plunder.

JERSEY CITY, June 11.—A large market basket, covered with an old straw hat, stood on the corner of Clark & Duane streets, near the corner of Communipaw and Randolph avenues, this city. The basket was covered with a cloth, and a little girl, who lives in one of the tenements on the corner, was seen to enter the basket. The policeman Jones, on removing the cover, was surprised to see that the basket contained a lot of spoils of silk and artificial flowers. The policeman recognized the shawl as belonging to Katie Hoffman, a little girl who lives in one of the tenements on the corner. Suspecting a robbery he tried all the doors on his post. He saw a man, Mrs. E. H. Richmond, fill up the basket with the iron door that guards the cellar entrance. The shawl had been denuded of their contents and the box was upon the floor. The officer aroused Mrs. Richer, who was asleep on the floor above. Then he went in search of the thief.

He met little Katie Hoffman, who is only thirteen years old, sitting in front of her house. Seeing that she was watched she retreated into the house, but presently she came out and dashed down the street into a basket. Jones saw her tugging at a basket which she had scarcely cast. He followed her. The basket was full of silk and artificial flowers. At the station house she confessed she had robbed the store. She is a white, plump, rosy-cheeked girl, with sharp pointed nose and cold gray eyes. Everything about her indicated poverty and neglect.

"I saw de gratin' open," she said, "an so I squeeze myself in and clam through de cellar door. I was scared, but I was hungry, and so I scrawled back to where de trap door is an I opens it up an tuk de basket after me. I filled it up an tuk it to Mrs. Murphy and went back for more. I was lookin for de basket what I left on de doctor's store stop when de cop run me in."

Justice Wauson and the spectators were astonished at the girl's tale. She did not realize the enormity of her crime. She was held for trial. All the goods which she stole, worth about $100, were recovered.

Suing Mr. Tilden.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Edward Van Orden has begun a suit in the court of common pleas against Mr. Tilden. The suit is for the balance of $10,303, alleged to be due for work performed in putting a water-tight flooring upon the cellar of Mr. Tilden's house at Gramercy Park, and for the cost of the building. Mr. Tilden paid from time to time while the work was progressing the sum of $15,000. Mr. Tilden claims that the work was badly done, so that he had to employ other persons at an expenditure of $15,000 more. He claims that the work was so bad that he had to employ other persons at an expenditure of $15,000 more. ## Killed by Her Brother.

POTTSVILLE, Penn., June 11.—Mrs. Abram McCallister, of Altoona, was down stairs leaving two young children in the sleeping room. The little girl was asleep in bed, and the little boy took a gun, went down stairs, and was loaded with a heavy charge of shot, and began firing with the lock, when the gun was discharged, killing the child instantly.

As will be seen by a Washington tele-

A Bad Boy's Bright Idea.
(New York Times.)

Some carpenters at work on a building near the foot of Broadway gave an old woman a piece of rotten green-pine siding for fire wood. The board was too long to carry home, and the old woman had no implement with which to break it up. A bright flash of insight at once struck her, and she saw the trouble the old woman was in. He considered a moment, and then picked up a paving stone and carried it out into the middle of the street. Then he put one end of the board on the stone and waited until a Southey stage rambled along down the street rolled off the board, breaking it off near the stone. The old woman picked up the pieces, and the boy again put up the end of the board on the stone. An express wagon rolled by and left the board two feet shorter than it was before. Wagon and stage passed on breaking up the board until the old woman had her arms full of pieces. Then the boy carried the paving stone back to the gutter, pulled it up to one of his pockets, and, whipping it around the corner, got in the way of more people in a minute than a good boy could in a week.

Minute Writing.
(Xenophon's Callistion.)

It was thought a wonderful achievement, when Paris was besieged by the Germans, to photograph one side of a newspaper on tissue paper small enough to be enclosed in a tiny quill. A carrier pigeon conveyed the quill out of the besieged city to those who read its contents through a magnifying glass.
But neither photography nor the microscope was known in the days of Cleopatra, yet her history was written on a piece of parchment so small as to be enclosed in a nut-shell.

A Frenchman, after years of practicing word on three canonical prayers of the Roman church on one of his finger-nails.
He was proud of his exploit, but a poet
it is mentioned by Pliny who explained him in the art of minute penmanship. He wrote a couplet in letters of gold, but so small that it was invisible to the eye. A bit of paper on which it was inscribed was again and again of a grain of wheat.
Cleopatra's history was written on a piece of parchment so small as to be enclosed in a nut-shell.

KICKING.
Eastern Kentucky Wants to Know if
Col. Baldwin Owns the Earth.

(Special to the Louisville Times.)

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Democrats in Eastern Kentucky are naturally incli-nant that Colonel W. H. Baldwin, the man who contributed most to the defeat of Colonel Frank Powers, the Democratic candidate for Congress, should control the patronage in that district. Powers was defeated by less than a hundred votes, and Colonel Baldwin and his henchmen boasted that they got in their work in Mason County. Then Col. Bal-win proceeded to claim the patronage from Mr. Wadsworth, the Republican Congressman-elect, as a reward for his services in stabilizing the standard-bearer of his party. He came on to Washington and his son-in-law, quite a young man, appointed Postmaster at Maysville.
Not content with this fat scoop worth
over $4,000 per annum, he goes on Gen.
Robinson's bond as Collector in that district and demands that he shall have the naming of the store-keepers and grocers
in that part of the district. Forbearance has ceased to be a virtue, and protests are pouring in against the unholly alliance. If Colonel Baldwin is to hold up that end of the Commonwealth by the tail, the Democrats thereabout want to know it in time.

The Maysville Postoffice.
(Louisville Times.)

Of the newly appointed Postmaster
at Maysville late Congressman Geo. W.
Robinson says: "The objection to Mr.
Recess seems to be that he is the son-in-law of a man who voted against the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Maysville district at the last election."
This is only part of the truth. Col.
Baldwin, the father-in-law in question, professing to be a Democrat, voted for the Republican candidate for Congress, and voted his large number of employers for him, thus insuring the message majority by which the Democratic candidate was defeated.

COUNTY POINTS.

Light tobacco season Monday morning.
C. C. Cole said his combined selling to Strader & Jefferson, of Lexington, for a long period.

Rev. Vandemere gave a grand discourse on Sunday afternoon, and was invited to return on an early day and give us another one of the sort.

Miss Emma Wadsworth's entertainment on Friday night at Maysville was a success. She is a true friend of the cause, as her exhibition gave evidence.

Love for liberty and wife and daughter,
from California, reached the home of Mr. A.
Stiles, on Friday last, and were cordially received by their Kentucky friends.
Died, June 8th, Mrs. E. A. wife of E. A.
Stiles, a native of Kentucky, who was born in this city, in the thirty-fourth year of her age. She was a devoted wife and mother, and a true friend of the cause. She was serving at Maysville, in which Rev. Messrs.
Garrett and Hall participated. Miss Emma Wadsworth, at the residence, the deceased was gently laid away, her last earthly duty being to her friends and the church.
The church was crowded with friends who came to bid her last farewell. Her death touched her gently. There had come back to her the thought of the book of youth, something which told of a delicate, lively-
like beauty, who was, too, that mysterious smile, that expression of her nature, which is the seal of heaven set on earthly clay. If she were one of the truly immortal, she would be in some heavenly realm, as it induced the beauty of the Lord: her body was here. A Christian in her early childhood, she was always patient, sympathetic, kind and gentle, and a sweet, good and lovely spirit.

IN THE FIELD OF LABOR.

DOINGS AMONG UNIONS THROUGH-OUT THE COUNTRY.

The Hat Makers' and Finishers' Association—Poorly Paid Workmen—Investigating Female Labor—Yonkers Pickets Discharged—Notes.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The board of directors of the Hat makers' and Hat finishers' National association will meet in this city on the 16th inst. at 1 o'clock p. m. The finishers will meet at 363 Bowery and the makers at 10 Stanton street, so as to be within call of each other. Conference and joint meetings will be necessary. These meetings are partly called for the purpose of getting up a label or trade-mark to be used on hats made by union or "fair" men.

The Seventeenth National convention of the United States Wool-hat finishers' association will be held at the Tremont house, this city. C. Outman Osborn, president, and Archibald M. Taylor, secretary, of Mattawan, N. Y. Delegates will be present from Portland, Me.; Haverhill, Methuen, Newburyport and Andover, Mass.; Danbury and Bridgeport, Conn.; Mattawan, Midston and Yonkers, N. Y., and Reading, Pa.

A mass meeting of the Hebrew Tinsmiths' union was held at 101 Hester street, this city. The strike in Block's factory, Bayard street, was discussed. These meetings were all young men. The strike was against a reduction in wages. They had all worked by the piece. The last paid wages was each boiler, of which three men could make a gross a day, for which they received $5 to $6, according to the size. One of the poorest jobs was making collanders, and one good workman could make, by hard work, a gross a day, for which he was paid $1.50. Greenhorns employed at Castle Garden had worked for $2.50 a week. Although in Germany they may have been considered first-rate workmen. They had to learn the trade anew, because of machinery.

Deputy Commissioner Kean, of the bureau of labor statistics of New York, is at present in this city. He says the commission, who has returned from his European tour, has decided to investigate the extent and condition of female labor in New York state, also the number of trade unions and their membership, together with a history of strikes during the year. This is an ambitious program, and will require a considerable amount of energy and perseverance to successfully carry out. Mr. Kean is consulting with those interested in women wage-earners as to the best plan to adopt to arrive at the most satisfactory results. The deputy says also that the report of the bureau for last year, which was placed in the hands of Wood & Parsons, the state printer, on January 16, is not half completed. It looks as if it will be in the hands of the public some time in September.

Yonkers Pickets Discharged.
YONKERS, N. Y., June 11.—The city court room at Yonkers was packed again by the striking carpet workers and their friends. The crowd extended far into the court yard and eagerly awaited the decision of Judge Fente. The prosecuting attorney, Lawyer Saunders, had analyzed the ruling of Judge Mills, in the Devine laborer corpus case, and gracefully conceded that the prisoners could not be held. Thereupon Judge Fente discharged them. The decision was received with cheers. This closes one phase of the proceedings. Mr. John Brennan will begin suits against the non-compliance of the board for false imprisonment in every instance. He says he has good cases.

To Sign the Scale.
YONKERS, O., June 11.—It is just reported from Brown, Bonnel & Co. that they will sign the scale and resume operations on Monday morning, providing they can get the mill ready. Workmen are busy at the furnaces, which indicates that the report is not without foundation. Members of the firm would neither deny nor affirm the report. It is thought here that the firm workers' strike is at an end. Brown, Bonnel & Co.'s mill is about the largest in Eastern Ohio, and employs nearly one thousand men, and the signing of the scale by them is regarded as a great victory for the workmen.

Live Labor Notes.
The conductors and brakemen of the Central division of the Grand Trunk line have decided that the reduction of 5 per cent. be extended for six months from May 1.

The North Ashland, Pa., colliery, at which place a cave-in occurred a few weeks ago, has resumed operations. Four hundred men and boys are employed.

The locomotive engineers on the Consolidated road, running into New Haven, Conn., are dissatisfied with the pay they are receiving, and the brotherhood officers will be called upon to settle the difficulty.

The weavers of Frankford, Philadelphia, have organized a co-operative company for the purpose of producing textiles in cotton, wool and silk. The capital stock is fixed at $30,000, in 400 shares, at $50 each.

The Newsdealers' unions throughout the country are about electing delegates to the National Newsdealers' convention, which will meet at Philadelphia on July 14.

The machinists of New York who do not belong to a trade union are requested to send their names and addresses to C. L. U., 302 Bowery.

John Phillips, secretary of the New York State Workingmen's assembly, is preparing a directory of the trade and labor unions of the state, with the names and addresses of their secretaries. He solicits organizations to send him the information he is seeking to 477 Park avenue, Brooklyn.

The Illinois senate passed a bill providing that all incorporated trade societies and departments may levy a tax upon insurance companies to partial support of the department. The bill is not yet pending in the legislature when a larger carries weapons with which life might be taken was also passed.

The Woman's Press Association.
NEW HAVEN, Ct., June 11.—The Woman's National Press association has elected as vice presidents: Mrs. Florence M. Adkinson, of Indianapolis; Mrs. L. M. Pavy, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Mary McMillen, of London, England. The members of the Association have been invited to visit Miss Clara Barton, of Danville, N. Y., in August.
